

Savannah Clarkston

Savannah Clarkston brings experience in public policy analysis, research project management, and consensus building to her position as the Assistant Director of Government Affairs for NEII.

She earned her Master of Public Policy at Jacksonville University's Public Policy Institute, a program which emphasizes the development of core skills in policy analysis, management, and leadership. These skills are foundational in Savannah's career in policy analysis and research, which began at a local level and expanded to include both state and federal policy.

Throughout her career, Savannah has worked to bring stakeholders together regardless of political affiliation to find creative ways to implement effective, long-term policy-based solutions to improve the lives of many. Outside of work Savannah enjoys spending time with her family and her puppy, Winston, at the beach.

